Art Unit: 2125

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

2. Claims 1-21 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Rubbert et al. (U.S. Pub. 2004/0073417).

Regarding claims 1 and 13, Rubbert discloses generating a template representing data common to the object ([0100, Fig. 7A); generating specific data to customize the object in conjunction with the template wherein the specific data comprises at least one tool path ([0016, [0014]); and directing at least one tool along the at least one tool path to fabricate a customized version of the object (Fig. 5, [0030; [0012]); receiving a digital representation of a target path ([0061; Fig. 5); generating a mathematically smoothed version of the target path (Figs. 6, 20 and 21); applying the smoothed target path to generate a secondary target path (Figs. 10, 12 and 13); and generating a streamlined too path (Fig. 9).

Regarding claims 3 and 14, Rubbert discloses the tool path is represented as a spline ([0018]; [0079]).

Art Unit: 2125

Regarding claims 4 and 15, Rubbert discloses the object has an ideal model surface, wherein generating the specific data comprises creating an idealized tool path from the ideal model surface (Fig. 10).

Regarding claims 5 and 16, Rubbert discloses generating a mathematically smooth 3D spline using the idealized tool-path (Fig. 20; [0056]).

Regarding claims 6 and 17, Rubbert discloses generating surface normal from the ideal model surface at points distributed around the idealized tool-path

Regarding claims 7 and 18, Rubbert discloses displacing each surface normal from its end to the nearest point on the smooth 3D spline (Fig. 20).

Regarding claims 8-9 and 19, Rubbert discloses creating a spline connecting each unattached end of each surface normal ([0137]); the ends are attached sequentially in a loop ([00590]).

Regarding claims 10 and 20, Rubbert discloses directing the tool comprises using a source spline to define motion of the tool by defining tool orientation vectors (Fig. 21).

Regarding claims 11-12 and 21, Rubbert discloses the source spline is adjusted by moderately elevating or lowering angle of the surface normal ([0137]).

Response to Amendment/Response to Arguments

3. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1, 3-21 has been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion

4. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
